

Chat Jar

Collaboration in Palliative Dementia Care

These are Chat Jar Cards designed to help a team of care professionals reflect on:

- Palliative care for people with dementia
- Collaboration in palliative dementia care
- Dealing with the end of life
- General topics within palliative care

The cards can be used in a glass jar. Out of respect for nature, we kindly ask you to use your own glass jar. Inside the DEDICATED-box, you will find a Chat Jar sticker that you can place on your jar.

The Chat Jar is inviting and easy to use, for example during multidisciplinary meetings, breaks, or team discussions.

What does collaboration in palliative care mean
to you?

With whom do you
collaborate in the
palliative care for people with dementia?

How do you collaborate with people with dementia?
And with their loved ones?

What does good
collaboration between
care professionals,
people with dementia,
and their loved ones
look like?

What do you think could
be improved in
collaboration between
care professionals?

What do you think could
be improved in
collaboration with people with dementia and their loved ones?

At which moments do you (especially) need
collaboration with other
care professionals?

What is your role in collaborating with other care professionals in palliative care for people with dementia?

How do you make arrangements with
other care
professionals about
task division?

What do you think about the contact you have with other care professionals?

How do you express your opinion to other care
professionals about
palliative care for someone with dementia?

What do you think about
shared decision-making
between care
professionals, people
with dementia, and their
loved ones?

What do you think about
information exchange
between care
professionals?

With whom do you
collaborate when someone with dementia
moves to a nursing home?
And how do you do that?

What do you find
important in collaboration with care professionals when someone with dementia moves to
a nursing home?

How do you work together with others to ensure someone with dementia feels at home
in a nursing home?

How do you know whether the collaboration between care professionals, people with dementia, and their loved ones is going well?